

Sprint Retrospectives

Sprint 1

Everyone was trying to get to get to know the platforms and how to implement some of the basic features like logging in and doing the simple things making accounts, no one had any documentable issues which need attention. One member had a suggestion that we should spend more time during meetings discussing coordination because he felt that the coordination was lacking a little bit and it needed some boosting. This is why we decided to have longer daily scrums so hopefully the problem will get resolved. Most of the group agreed to what he was saying which is why we all took an initiative to try and resolve the issue.

Sprint 2

The biggest issue was that one of our group members disappeared at some point and we had to take over his tasks, this was a real issue because we didn't hear from the member until the meeting with the marker. This issue bothered the group members a lot and it caused a lot of tension in the group this led to us removing the member from the group and thus continuing with the four of us. We were able to get some of his features working While others we're just too long to implement in time. This was a big issue and there was negative tension in the group. In order to tackle this issue we decided to go out as a group and go have lunch and just talk things out so that everything could go back to normal, luckily all was not lost because after the lunch everything seemed like it was back to normal.

Sprint 3

The rouge team member came back and told us what was happening and why he was gone, although the issue was somewhat understandable we still took decisions to penalize him on the marks but still allowed him to return to the group. His integration back into the group proved to be somewhat challenging because some of the group members we're still not OK with him leaving at such a short notice And then coming back out of the blue. so we decided to have another team lunch so that everyone could get back on everyone else's good books. this plan worked because after we went to the lunch everyone started being OK with everyone else and we seemed like a group again. However one of our group members did feel that we need to give a more steeper punishment which is why we decided to give him more work for the coming Sprint. All the parties agreed to this arrangement and we were able to move on.

Sprint 4

For this sprint there were no notable issues just having to deal with merge conflicts and having to deal with polish. The Sprint went well and issues were dealt with. No one had any big concerns about the group and everyone pitched in to do what they had to do so the Sprint was just smooth and was the smoothest of all. the final touches were made to the project and everything went well.
